Of The
DayNEHRU WARNS
CHINA

PEKING should make no mistake about the tone of Mr. Nehru's warning on Bhutan and Sikkim. It means that force will be met by force and that India intends to help her friends if the need arises. It is a statement that is ringing cheers all over the world—not because the West wants to see India and China falling out, but because Mr. Nehru is for once avoiding any ambiguity about his intentions. He is warning China that despite their friendship, there exist more solemn undertakings with small neighbours which he will not sacrifice.

Mr. Nehru has undoubtedly been disillusioned by Chinese action in Tibet, a country with which India has had long and friendly associations. Moreover, China's frequently-heard charges of "Indian imperialism" during the Tibetan uprising has only aggravated matters. And the ruthlessness with which the persecution has continued coupled with the arrogance with which Chinese soldiers have pursued Tibetan refugees in complete disregard of frontiers, have alarmed and shocked official India. No wonder Mr. Nehru now uses fighting words.

ON top of all this the Chinese have arbitrarily claimed disputed frontier areas in complete defiance of Mr. Chou En-lai's much favoured five principles of peaceful co-existence and reportedly massed troops on Indian frontiers. And there have been ugly rumours circulating about China's intention to create a new Tibetan autonomous area embracing all Tibetan peoples regardless of existing national frontiers. Nor is this to be written off as crude Western slander because Mr. Nehru obviously believes it and has taken prompt action to let China know where India stands. Things may yet go further. There may be mobilisation in India to emphasise Nehru's words to Parliament. This would clear any lingering misconceptions in the mind of Mao Tse-tung. All along China has treated both Nehru and the Indian people not as friends and equals, but as subservient and inferior neighbours whom they can kick around whenever the occasion demands. Nehru should, if he values his policy of neutrality, take pains to show the Chinese that the independence and dignity of India cannot be lightly affronted. And a one-sided friendship is no friendship at all.

ANTI-COMMUNIST Asia has been telling Nehru this for years. The latest events vindicate their warnings and mistrust of the man in Peking. How, one wonders, will all this trouble including the eye-opening experience of Communist misrule in Kerala state affect Indian foreign policy?

Nehru is a patient man, free of petty whims and vindictiveness. So it would be too much to expect any dramatic reappreciation of Sino-Indian relations. But India has perhaps learnt a lesson, and that is not to be quite so trusting of uncertain friends. The net to the left that India's neutrality has always worn in the past may thus be corrected by this experience. It may assume a more vertical position in the future.

EARTHQUAKE ROCKS
MEXICAN GULF COASTMany Killed
And Missing,
Severe Damage

Minatitlan, Mexico, Aug. 26. A major earthquake rocked the Tehuantepec Peninsula early today, causing many deaths and severe property damage in the Mexican Gulf coast area. Veracruz state authorities put the early official death toll at nine. Unofficial reports said at least 21 persons were killed and four others were missing and feared buried in the rubble. At least 45 other persons were injured, according to unofficial sources.

ROUND UP
OF 'CAR
MINDERS'

Singapore, Aug. 26. Singapore's "car minder" boys are to be rounded up and put in a corrective training institution, the Minister for Labour and Law, Mr. K. M. Byrne, said today.

Mr. Byrne told reporters that in recent months more and more children had been seen near car parks, minding vehicles for a few cents.

"Instead of idling their time away, and running loose in the streets, it would be of lasting benefit for them to learn a trade while under probation," he said.—Reuters.

IRA Men
Ambush
Police

Belfast, Aug. 26. A police Land Rover was ambushed tonight on a mountain road between Roslea and Brookeborough in County Fermanagh.

A heavy explosion, on a bridge severely damaged the vehicle.

Machinegun fire was directed at the police car for several minutes after the explosion.

A police constable and a regular officer were taken to hospital. The extent of their injuries was not disclosed.

After the ambush several men were observed fleeing towards the border with the Irish Republic half a mile away.

Intense police activity was reported on both sides of the border.

Though no immediate confirmation was available, the ambush was presumed to be the work of members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, which is pledged to reunite Ireland by force if necessary.—Reuters.

Recognition
Considered

London, Aug. 27. Reports from Rio de Janeiro that Brazil is considering recognizing diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union and recognizing the government of People's China were published by The Times this morning.—AP.

The quake opened huge fissures in the earth in places. Veracruz authorities rushed emergency supplies to the stricken area. President Adolfo Lopez Mateos ordered the Federal Health Department to take action, and a plane with supplies was dispatched to the isthmus area this afternoon.

Wide Gulleys
Near Comacacocoles, the earth opened into wide gulleys and the track of the national railway line sank about 10 feet into the ground in two places. The track was submerged for half a mile in one of the places.

The Mexican quake followed a series of earth tremors throughout the northwestern United States where in Montana it caused a huge landslide which left 10 known dead and scores of persons missing.

Reports from today's quake sector said at least 20 persons were killed in the village of Jalitipan where, officials said, about 80 per cent of the brick and tile dwellings were tumbled into ruins. Four persons were reported missing and feared buried in the rubble.

One person was reported killed in the village of Ch-namoc near Jalitipan.

The quake struck at about 2:30 a.m. and lasted a minute. The stricken area is along the coast of the Gulf of Mexico, about 300 miles southeast of Mexico City.

Cut Off
Communications were cut off, making it difficult to determine the extent of casualties and damage.

Properly damaged to oil and sulphur plants, while not heavy in any one spot, appeared to be extensive overall. Many sulphur company docks were out of commission, conveyor systems were dislodged and fuel tanks were broken.

Reports from the mountain region around the stricken area said many villages and hamlets had been damaged badly, but details were lacking.

Several buildings in Minatitlan, including the government oil monopoly headquarters in the port area, were heavily damaged but there was no report of casualties.

Building damage, such as broken windows or cracked walls, was reported from as far as 200 miles from the main quake area. Electric power was cut off through most of the region.—UPI.

Storm Is Expected
To Weaken

The tropical Depression Kate, whose last reported position at 9 a.m. this morning was 150 miles east-north-east of Manila, is expected to cross North Luzon during the night. A spokesman said the Royal Observatory said he did not expect it to affect the Colony. After it reached the China Sea, he said, it would probably weaken further.

The spokesman said the storm was moving slowly west-north-west at about seven knots.

A Dead Russian
Circling Space?

Dallas, Aug. 26. The Dallas Times Herald today quoted an American scientist saying he believed Russia had already fired a man into space but failed to bring him safely back to earth.

Dr. Henry Richter, chief of the space administration's space instruments section, said in an interview with a Times-Herald reporter: "We conclude that Russia has unsuccessfully fired a man into space from reading routine news items in Russia, the Russian newspaper."

The Times-Herald quoted Dr. Richter as saying that American scientists had expected Russia to get a man into space faster than the United States could. "But their ability to get him home again is dubious," he added.—Reuters.

'Pyjama Party
To End All
Pyjama Parties'

London, Aug. 26. Two hundred youths and girls in scanty nightwear paraded through London's West End last night after a "pyjama party to end all pyjama parties."

They carried a coffin "to mark the death of pyjama parties" and banners reading "The Pyjama Party Is Dead!"

The parade followed a shindig at a club in the cosmopolitan Soho district, and was led by socialist Mark Sykes and "man-about-town" Lord Selsby.

The 22-year-old son of the Marquess of Bath.

The marchers headed in orderly fashion toward the Thames embankment to "bury" the coffin "at sea."

But police moved in before the marchers reached their objective. The youngsters scattered and one group managed to get away with the coffin.

They evaded police cars in one of the streets leading to the river and tossed in the coffin to cheers. Most of the girls wore transparent "shorty" nightgowns and bikini pants.—UPI.

Grounded For Flying
Under Bridge

Ohio, Aug. 26. Capt. John S. Lappo, of the Strategic Air Command, has been grounded indefinitely and fined $300 for flying a six-jet B-47 bomber beneath the straits of Mackinac bridge in Michigan.

The SAC revealed yesterday that Capt. Lappo pleaded guilty in a court martial to flying the big plane on April 24 beneath the bridge connecting Michigan's upper and lower peninsulas.

There is a 150-foot clearance between the bridge and the water.—UPI.

Moscow, Aug. 26. Ten animals have been chosen as prospective space travellers in future Soviet space missions and are being given special training. Tass reported today.—Reuters.

Novel Honeymoon For HK Girl

By A CHINA MAIL REPORTER

Former King George V school-girl and hockey star, Sheila Hall, has chosen a novel honeymoon. After her wedding this Saturday to David Thornburrow at Mosley Hill Parish Church, Liverpool, she and her husband will be in motorcars on their honeymoon in Hong Kong.

After it reached the Colony, she said, it would probably weaken further.

The spokesman said the storm was moving slowly west-north-west at about seven knots.

Sheila Hall is the daughter of Mrs. Mabel Hall of "Beach House," Castle Peak Road, and the late Mr. G. A. V. Hall, the well-known architect. She left Hong Kong for England in 1954, and is now a fourth-year undergraduate studying architecture in the University of Liverpool.

Mr. Thornburrow is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Thornburrow of Southport, Lancashire. Both he and his bride, Miss Hall, graduated with honours in architecture from Liverpool recently.

For her wedding Miss Hall will be wearing a dress of snow-white Chinese brocade, made in Hong Kong—in 24 hours and from just two measurements, said Mr. Thornburrow.

His bride, Miss Hall, is a naval engineer in Farnborough, will be giving her away.

After a reception at the Lord Nelson Hotel in Liverpool, the young couple and their best man will start on their honeymoon.

They intend to motor to Southampton, the home of Mr. Hoffner's parents, and from there to take an air ferry over to the Continent with their jeep. They have planned to travel via Istanbul.

Mr. Thornburrow and Mr. Hoffner intend to work in Hong Kong for a year or two.

Runaway Torpedo
Chases Crowd Of Holidaymakers

Sydney, Aug. 26. A runaway practice torpedo charged through a crowd of more than 200 holidaymakers, many of them children, at Clareville Beach, north of Sydney this afternoon.

Equipped with a dummy warhead, it leapt from the water at the feet of a young couple and hurtled 40 feet through the air before crashing at the gate of a nearby home.

The missile, which was being tested at a naval station, was about half a mile away when it swooped back on its tracks after launching.

NARROW ESCAPE
Two young children had been sitting on a box where the torpedo hit the beach seconds before.

Their mother unwittingly saved their lives by having called them to lunch.

Two workmen, watching from a construction site above the beach, saw the torpedo launched. One of them, Mr. Evan Marsh, said the torpedo hit the water and bounced when it was launched from the end of a long jetty at the testing base.

The second impact must have damaged the gyro because the torpedo suddenly stuck its nose up like a speedboat and charged in a wide arch out into the bay.

CURVED
"Then it submerged and we watched it as it began to curve in towards the beach. From our position above the beach we could see the wake clearly. The torpedo must have been going more than 40 mph."

Mr. Marsh said the torpedo missed a 55 ft. luxury yacht by inches, as it tore towards the beach.

"We were too far away to shoot," he added.

"We just had to stand there and watch as the torpedo shot out of the water, past a young couple, and ploughed a deep trench through the grass behind the beach until it stopped at the open gateway of a home behind."

Navy crash boat sped across the bay and swiftly retrieved the runaway missile.

The crew grappled the torpedo alongside the boat and hauled it back to the base.—China Mail Special.

Pocket TV Sets For
The Future

London, Aug. 26. Portable television gadgets to be carried in the jacket pocket were forecast here today by Lord Hrabson of Tara, President of the Radio Industry Council.

"The introduction of transistors enables us now to carry a portable radio in our waistcoat pocket," he said when he opened the national industry's annual exhibition in London.

"I have no doubt that in a few years we shall carry a television set in our jacket pocket."

"It is quite obvious to me that if the traffic jams go on as they do now no car will be complete without its television set."—China Mail Special.

To 'Educate'
Taxi Drivers

Singapore, Aug. 27. Taxi drivers here are to be "educated."

In a campaign to educate the taxi drivers the police will introduce talks and film shows.

A traffic police spokesman said there was a need to point out to these drivers their faults.

He said many drivers flout the law because of the keen competition. There are 11,576 registered taxi drivers here.—UPI.

Stabbed Boy:
Girl Acted In Self-Defence

Rome, Aug. 26. A 19-year-old girl who stabbed to death one of five teenage boys who accosted her on a lonely road on Sunday night on her way home from church has been released from 48 hours police detention after a magistrate found that she acted in self-defence.

The girl, Alba Abbrighi, was released late last night. The other four boys, aged 14 to 16, were today under arrest on a charge of attempted violence.—China Mail Special.

Sea Chase
Sequel:
Men Fined

The two men arrested in connection with the Tuesday morning sea chase at Castello Peak, were fined $5,000 or five months' gaol by Mr. T. L. Yang at Central Magistracy this morning.

They were charged with importing 3,000 lbs. of dutiable Chinese-prepared tobacco without a licence.

Lai Woon, 28, of 75 Battery Street, first floor, and Lu Cheung-hung, 32, of 14 Pitt Street, second floor, both unemployed, were cautioned on an alternative charge of having the tobacco in their custody without a licence.

Revenue Inspector K. K. Leung said the duty payable on the tobacco was $5,000.

It was learned that the 3,000 lbs. of tobacco was worth about $15,000.

The defendants said they were employed by someone to do the job and asked for leniency saying that they had wives and children to support.

10 Months
Gaol For Vietnamese

A Vietnamese of French nationality, But The Phnom, 55, defendant of the Bulthe Trading Co., of 18 Mody Road, was sentenced to a total of 10 months gaol for obtaining goods by false pretences and obtaining credit by fraud by Mr. E. Corbally at Central Magistracy this morning.

Mr. Corbally, giving the judgment, said he was satisfied that defendant had no intention of paying for the goods when he ordered them.

"I feel that this sort of thing should not be tolerated in the Colony, and I have no hesitation in finding defendant guilty of the two charges," Mr. Corbally said.

It was alleged that on March 17, defendant obtained from Sung Pok-loc, a salesman of the Eva Co., a quantity of cloth, valued at $10,164, by falsely pretending that a $12,000 cheque was good, and that he had the authority to draw on the Banque de L'Indochine.

It was also alleged that defendant, on February 17, obtained credit of $2,408 from the Scientific Service Co. by means of fraud other than false pretences.

MR K's THREAT OF PEACE PACT WITH E. GERMANY

Note To Dr Adenauer Says German People Would Gain

Moscow, Aug. 27.
Mr Nikita Khrushchev, Prime Minister of the Soviet Union, has written to Dr Konrad Adenauer, the West German Chancellor, saying that if relations between their two states could not be improved, the Soviet Union would be compelled to sign a peace treaty with Communist East Germany.

The message, published here today by the official Soviet News Agency, Tass, was handed to Dr Adenauer by the Soviet Ambassador in Bonn on Aug. 18, the agency said.

Prospects hampered
It expressed the Soviet leader's conviction that the maintenance of friendly and peaceful relations between Western Germany and the Socialist countries would enable further development of economy and improvement of the people's well-being.

Mr Khrushchev said the prospects for the establishment of good-neighbour relations were being hampered "by the still existing remnants of World War II."

One of them, he went on, was the absence of a peace treaty with Germany. "All states would benefit from the abolition of these remnants of war and the German people would benefit most from the conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany."

All countries which fought against Nazi Germany would be asked to follow the Soviet Union's example and conclude such a treaty, he said.

'Slave-Labour' Girl Meets Mother After 18 Years

Melbourne, Aug. 26.
A weeping, grey-haired Polish woman reached out her arms to her daughter at Essendon Airport today, and asked: "Did they hurt you, my dear one?"

The two women were meeting for the first time since that day 18 years ago when German soldiers burst into Mrs Helen Brunowski's home in Poland, tore her 14-year-old daughter Irene from her arms and deported her to a slave-labour farm in Germany.

The last words little Irene heard her mother shout as she was dragged away were: "I'll find you. I'll find you."

Today, in Melbourne, she did.

Mrs Brunowski, 62 and her son Kazimierz, 27, arrived by air from Poland today to be reunited with Irene, now 32, married and a happy mother of two children.

U.S. To Send Immediate Aid For Laos Army

Washington, Aug. 26.
The United States has decided to send military aid and money to Laos to help it increase its forces in the face of Communist infiltration, it was officially announced tonight.

The aid is being sent in response to an urgent appeal. The State Department announced this decision said the money and supplies would help Laos "withstand what appears ever more clearly to be extensive Communist designs to disrupt and subvert Laos."

The announcement did not say how big an increase in the Laotian Army would be provided for. Laos has a regular army of less than 25,000, together with 16,000 village militia, officials said.

Nor did the announcement disclose precisely what materials would be sent, or the cost of the equipment and financial aid.

But unofficial estimates were that the U.S. aid would permit a 4,000-man increase in Laotian forces. The cost has been unofficially estimated at about $5 million.

UK CONSULTED
Britain was understood to have been consulted before the United States announced its decision, which was approved by President Eisenhower before he flew to Europe today.

Mr Lincoln White, the State Department spokesman, said the equipment involved was small arms, uniforms, tents "and the like."

"It does not involve modern weapons and equipment—no tanks, artillery, etc.," Mr White said.

"This whole programme is a defensive one," officials said. It would be shipped without delay.—Reuter.

Simulated Flight Spaceman 'Orbits' 150 Miles Up, Little Dizzy

Johnsville, Penn., Aug. 26.
One of America's seven "spacemen-in-waiting" was fired into simulated orbit on Tuesday for a four-hour flight 150 miles from earth and "retired" to tell newsmen he felt "a little dizzy but not bad."

The trip, made in a specially-built centrifuge designed to give the astronaut the feeling of space, was made by Leroy G. Cooper. It was the first time that newsmen were permitted to watch such a flight.

Cooper, dressed in a green coverall zipped up to the neck, stepped into the centrifuge for his "flight" while two of the other astronauts, Malcolm S. Carpenter, and Alan B. Shepard, Jr., watched with newsmen.

When he finished his simulated flight and re-entry, Cooper summed up his feelings casually.

"It was a very normal flight—the same as we have been practising the last few days," he said.

Later, after settling down from his flight, he admitted, "I felt a little dizzy, but not bad. Weightlessness? No, I felt the opposite of weightlessness. I felt rather weighty."

No Pain
Cooper said he had felt no pain.

"Once in a great while we feel a little tightness in breathing or a slight chest pain but very minor and hardly noticeable."

It was explained that Cooper underwent a pressure of nine G's—a weight equivalent to nine times the weight of his body.

The centrifuge in which Cooper took his ride includes a capsule in which the astronaut sits at the end of a 50-foot arm. The arm is spun around by one of the world's largest electric motors.—UPI.

Royal Tour's Concern Over Accidents

Brisbane, Aug. 26.
Princess Alexandra of Kent would not make any more unscheduled roadside stops to receive bouquets of flowers during her Australian tour, Mr W. R. Cunningham, Director-General of the Royal tour, said today.

Explaining that this had been decided for safety reasons, Mr Cunningham said: "The crowds have grown to such sizes along the roads the Princess has travelled that we are gravely concerned about the safety of people, especially children."

DANGER TO CHILDREN
"During the past few days there have been a number of instances of children endangering their lives by moving in front of the cars where it is impossible for drivers to see them."

"Accidents have been avoided only through the co-operation of the police and the skill of the drivers."

"The Royal tour directors have been obliged to advise the Princess to discontinue these stops, and who has agreed they would take place no longer."

Peking Behind Set Targets

FAILURE TO MAKE BIG LEAP FORWARD

By RONALD FARQUHAR

Peking, Aug. 26. China's leaders today published a final sober reckoning which showed that their country's economy failed to leap as far forward last year as over-enthusiastic statisticians originally claimed.

At the same time, they admitted that their aims this year were too high and they sharply scaled down their major industrial and agricultural targets for 1959.

After the proud propaganda fanfares with which they hailed last year's achievements, it must have been a bitter pill for the Chinese leaders to admit that much of their success existed on paper only, observers said.

The Facts

The Central Committee of the party set out the facts today in a long communique after a plenary session held under Mao Tse-tung's leadership at Lushan in Kiangsi province from August 2 to 16.

Party leaders revealed that instead of being doubled, as they claimed at the end of last year, grain output in 1958 went up by only 35 percent, cotton by 28 percent and steel by about 50 percent.

Grain and cotton targets for this year have been reduced to around half the original figures set earlier this year, and will not even be as high as the bumper figures erroneously claimed for last year.

The 1959 steel target is reduced by one-third and is only one million tons higher than the figure of 11 million tons originally claimed last year.

This year's coal target has been reduced by 45 million tons. Food shortages in Chinese cities had already raised doubts about the validity of last year's output figures.

So had China's difficulties in meeting some of her export commitments. However, some observers were surprised by such sweeping revision of last year's achievements and this year's targets just four months after both were enthusiastically acclaimed and approved amid wide publicity at the April session of the National Peoples Congress, China's parliament.

Observers said it looked as though the debate on both these issues continued throughout the summer with tonight's revisions of targets representing a compromise victory for the moderate "look before you leap" school.

No Reversal

The communique admitted there had been "certain defects" in the "great leap forward" and development of communes, which however following a checkup in the past months were "now advancing along the path of consolidated and sound development."

But the communique also warned against "right opportunist ideas" among some party officials accusing them of underestimating the "leap forward" and communes and slandering both these movements as "petty bourgeois" fanaticism.

The warnings might be intended to show that there was to be no reversal or abandonment of either these policies, observers said.

There seemed little prospect of easing of the present tight food situation by its call for skilled housekeeping and "making careful budgets and keeping reserves against want,"—Reuters.

Prefers Job In Tail

Merced, Calif., Aug. 26. A U.S. Air Force sergeant who inherited a mercury mine valued at $40 million said today he wants to keep his $400 a month job as tail gunner on a B-52 jet bomber.

"But, now I've got enough to buy groceries for a while," said T/Sgt Thomas L. Howlett, who is stationed at Castle Air Force Base.

The airman inherited the mine from Mrs. Corn Dinsmore of Livingston, Calif., the widow of a prospector.—UPI.

Taunton, Aug. 26. One thousand units of beer will be drunk tomorrow when East Brent, a Somersetshire village, holds one of the biggest harvest home celebrations in the country.

The menu for the villagers also includes 30 gallons of cider and hundreds of bottles of lemonade.

"On the dry side will be a ton of meat, 70 Christmas puddings, an eight-foot-long loaf and 140 pounds of cheese,"—China Mail Special.

Limerick Fire

Limerick, Aug. 26. Flames were still flaring up today from the remains of Limerick's shopping centre, gutted yesterday in one of Ireland's biggest fires.

Hundreds of people had stayed during the night to watch firemen and troops fighting to prevent the blaze from spreading.—China Mail Special.

BANK LIONS STILL GET PATS FOR GOOD LUCK IN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Aug. 26.

Two majestic bronze lions still receive friendly pats in the hope they will bring good luck to Shanghai citizens who scarcely remember the days when the building the lions guard was a British bank.

The beasts sit proudly flanking the entrance to the City Council building on the Bund, Shanghai's famous waterfront. Every day hundreds of Chinese pause on their way past the modern, white-domed building to stroke the lions' paws and the tails curled round by their flanks.

BACK AGAIN

It is a habit which has been going on for many years before and since the Communists came to power in China 10 years ago. Then the building housed the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank.

The carvings of hundreds of thousands of hands have worn the lions' paws and tails smooth and shiny.

Old Shanghai residents say Chinese, and many Europeans, considered it lucky to pat the lions as a kind of "charm" against running out of money. The custom continues today under the eyes of two young Chinese soldiers in mustard-coloured uniforms, standing guard at the pillared entrance to the building.

The Hongkong and Shanghai Bank still operates in Shanghai, but from different premises.

After the changeover the lions disappeared. The Communist authorities had removed them.

But in a few months they were back on their old pedestals.

They have remained ever since, among the rows of tall, modern white buildings overlooking the bustling Bund with its clanging red and green tram-cars and tree-lined promenade following the curve of the wide Whangpoo river, where occur-ing freighters and harbour tugboats thread their way through the swarms of wooden sampans and high-sailed junks.

One story told in Shanghai is that when the Communists took over the building the bank wanted to send their very British and imperial-looking lions to Hongkong.

But the Communists refused and even turned down the offer of a substantial sum of money for the animals, the story goes.

BRASS PLATE

A few other signs of the building's former owners still remain—a small brass plate in the floor with the name of the British makers of the swing doors, and a marble clock, made in London, keeping immaculate time on a mantelpiece in an inner office.—Reuters.

Strauss Resigns

Capetown, Aug. 26. Mr. Johannes Strauss, former leader of the South African United (Opposition) Party today announced his resignation from the party.

Mr. Strauss succeeded the late Field-Marshal Smuts as leader of the party in 1955.

Mr. Strauss, who up to today was Vice-President of the party's Witwatersrand General Council, said, "It has become quite clear to me that what has happened in the United Party is incompatible with the standard of conduct which I have always tried to follow in my participation in public life."

Much Regret

"While it is a matter for much regret to find the once-great United Party reduced numerically it is a matter for greater regret to find it even more reduced in moral stature,"—Reuters.

The secret deal behind the new Nasser link-up

TWENTY-FOUR hours after the agreement between President Nasser and King Hussein of Jordan to resume diplomatic relations, the powerful new (Soviet-constructed) radio transmitter on the outskirts of Baghdad began to broadcast a strange warning to all Iraqi missions abroad.

It told them to alert all foreign newspapers and news agencies of the fact that the "Middle East News Agency" was controlled by the Egyptian Government and run by Egyptian officers as part of the Egyptian propaganda machine.

The Iraqi missions were advised to warn the world's Press and news agencies "not to carry the reports of this Egyptian agency."

For Kassarim understood immediately that the Cairo agreement was aimed at him. The preliminaries had been conducted without much secrecy in Beirut. There were too many intermediaries concerned in the deal which Hussein had offered to Nasser, and which Nasser finally accepted last weekend.

For the past six weeks friends of King Hussein had been going to the Nasser-sponsored President of the Lebanon, General Shehab, carrying Hussein's terms for resuming diplomatic relations.

They were Hussein's Chief de Cabinet, Talhouli, and three other Ministers.

Revenge

They told Shehab that Nasser and Hussein now had two common enemies: Kassarim and Israel. For the time being they could do nothing about Israel; but what about Kassarim?

Hussein had taken a solemn oath to revenge the death of his royal relations. It was an idle

Big question

Not only is the country divided, but so are the armed forces. The trial of the commander of the second division, Brigadier Tackhull, which is now going on in Baghdad, has split the army into hostile camps.

The Communists are not yet strong enough to take over. The Russians have not yet consolidated their influence. This, therefore, in Hussein's opinion is the moment to strike.

A new united front is therefore in the process of formation. It embraces Nasser in Egypt, Hussein in Jordan, Shehab in the Lebanon and Serraj in Syria. And their enemy is Kassarim.

But the crucial question which is being asked in Baghdad and also in Beirut—is whether Hussein would have committed himself to this challenge without the foreknowledge that it came to a show-down he would enjoy at least the benevolent understanding of the Foreign Office and the State Department.

By

Nasser is playing his part of the bargain. He has again unleashed his propaganda machine, mainly through the powerful (Soviet-constructed) radio transmitter on the outskirts of Cairo.

He is evidently seeking to whip up the still substantial pro-Nasser element in Iraq against the Kassarim regime.

In Baghdad there appears to be considerable reorganisation afoot to meet this new threat. The elite Fifth Division has been alerted and covers all approaches to Baghdad.

There is complete confidence in Baghdad among Kassarim's immediate entourage that they will not be deserted by their powerful friend in the north. They believe that Khrushchev will warn the Western Powers and Nasser to keep off Iraq.

Objective

This leads to the other side of the Cairo deal. It concerns Israel. The official story is that Jordan will henceforth go to the aid of Nasser if he is attacked. But much more seems to have been considered.

The objective, it seems, is to provoke Israel out of the passive indifference with which she has lately countered Arab threats. And policies have been concerted with this objective. Suddenly, this Cairo agreement (which was welcomed by the Foreign Office) has projected a dark and threatening cloud on the sunny horizon of the Eisenhower-Khrushchev meetings.

Are we being smothered by little women?

London.

I AM leaving England soon. Only for a month, but it seems the most prudent moment to make my contribution to winning the sex war which I am convinced we are losing hands down.

Every man I know is convinced that we are gradually being snuffed out by little women.

They used to be called little women. Statistics show that they are becoming more lath-like and trouser-wearing (our trousers) every year.

And today everything is against us. Dammit, the women's columns tell them what to dress as in. Soon we shall all be wearing green ties from some little boutique.

NOT ALWAYS SO

No woman has ever been able to explain to me why with every other colour in the spectrum to choose from they have such a compulsion to buy green ties.

I do not mind being underwritten by women, saved from disaster, but I do not want to be undermined.

Clean-Up At Midnight

By GERALD BYRNE

BRITAIN'S war on vice is in its second week. At midnight on August 15 police in London and big cities throughout the country began an all-out drive to clear the vice-girls and their protectors off the streets. Now Home Secretary Butler will be standing by for reports on the Act's initial impact.

In London's West End, teams of uniformed police with vans went into action according to a pre-arranged plan. Their orders: Clean-up AT ONCE.

Similar V (for Vice) Day operations were put into effect throughout Britain.

I can reveal that the street girls had been left more or less alone in the days immediately before the new Act came into effect.

Now, with increased powers against street prostitutution (£10 fine for the first offence, £25 for the second, £25 fine and/or prison for the third) the "war" will be relentlessly pursued.

But the girls—and the men who run them—are already thinking ahead.

Many of the girls' "bosses" have already made fresh plans. Hours have been bought in which some of the girls will be placed.

The more fashionable street girls, who already have rooms of their own, will simply leave their front doors open and wait for their clients to call.

And the campaign which began at midnight on August 15 will drive many "small-time" girls more and more into the "near beer" joints, the cafes and the clubs, and even the pubs.

The Government expects that the swoop will result in a mass clearing of the streets, which is the Home Secretary's first concern.

Then the Government will decide whether any further legislative action is necessary.

Throughout the passage of the Bill in Parliament, particularly the Lords, there was widespread protest that the Bill did nothing to penalise the men clients of street women.

The Home Secretary has now thought again on this, in view of the pressure in Parliament, and is ready to take action against men who patronise the street women.

Depending on recommendations by the Metropolitan Commissioner, he is ready to introduce an amending Bill in Parliament should this be necessary.

Everything depends on what happens in the near future.

The Government's fight against prostitution has been such a major plank of ministerial action in this Parliament that the Cabinet is prepared to promise even tougher action in the next, if the present Act does not prove strong enough.

The Hard Sell

VISITED the Soviet cultural and scientific exhibit the other day and encountered an example of stiff Russian salesmanship.

Quizzed Ivan, standing beside a rapid display of electronic computers as to the prices of the items.

"You want to buy one, do you?"

"No, we just want to know the price."

"You don't want to buy one, do you?"

"No, just the price."

After a verbal exchange that warmed both parties, Ivan veered his course.

"You want to know the price, do you?"

"Yes, visit the Press room one."

Here our curiosity prodded as told him we weren't truly interested in purchasing the computer, we were merely being driven by a swelling human curiosity to know the price tag.

Course changed again. Cold front descended.

"You want to know the price?"

"Yes, we want to know the price."

"I don't want you to know the price," Salesmanship.

Ivan veered his course again.

"These machines are very expensive," he explained magnanimously through a derisive smile.

"Not many people understand them. Not many people can afford them. I cannot afford one. Maybe you cannot afford one."

We let Ivan into a secret. We told him we weren't truly interested in purchasing the computer, we were merely being driven by a swelling human curiosity to know the price tag.

Things were not always so. My father was a keen rowing man until he died, aged 82.

On his wedding day, having prudently arranged to have a sculler as his best man, he went off for what he called "a good blow" in a double-sculler from Hammersmith to Richmond and back before going on his honeymoon.

He never looked back. Every Sunday of his life he used to have "a good blow" and arrive home at half-past two bellowing for roast beef.

CAREERS

I am not going to be stupid enough to say anything about women with careers. It is still possible to keep out of their way and if you don't you are a masochist. (I am a masochist, I can remember.)

But for the rest, unless they are ill or you've presented them with virgins by mistake, why should we wash up for them when we come home? Do they have such a ghastly time as they make out?

You may have a motor car, earned by the sweat of your brow, not subsidised by your business—the Inspector of Taxes would guffaw if you asked him for relief.

But even if you can afford to use it to go to work, do you? No, it is used to take yours and other people's fortunate children to school while you sweat it out on public transport. If you haven't got children some other worthy excuse will be offered for not letting you have it.

That is the devilish thing about women; their seasons are always worthy.

And they have time for endless plotting. With their girl friends. Unless they are heavily escorted you never see any of your friends at all. You are alone in a vacuum—with a woman.

Because they are becoming more irascible they are trying to use earlier and earlier. By the time modern man is 25, having undergone child marriage, he's got a pot with a watch chain spread across it.

This is to fool you that he was in the Brigade of Guards but it doesn't make it any less disgraceful.

SILENT MEN

If you do not believe the evidence of your fellow men look at Americans.

One, moment they are busy 100lb muscle machines battling it out with Kyrila Sovictov in the final of the Grand at Henley.

The next they've got skins the colour of parchment, are wearing octagonal spectacles, and taking things to make them sleep.

And their wives are dancing things round them. So before it is too late I say get out and sell your own boat.

or paddle your own canoe and put her in the engine room.

Or come to Slovenia where the men are tall and alert except when they sing and how they sing. Where they work, eat and drink like Trojans.

I'd like to see anyone try to make them do the washing-up!

Things I'd like to have...

Poplin suits. This has been a splendid summer. The thin suit has finally been accepted. To wear one is no longer a sign that you were a missionary or something in the Punjab. But they are still too expensive.

Where are the cheap, drip-dry poplin suits you can get in Italy that will go in a washing machine? Surely that organisation that gets sizes right in everything from shirts to night-dresses should get on to this. Price about seven pounds.

Fuller plants. Now that more and more pubs are being re-decorated in Claretemporary, the operatives (dare I call them barmaids?) are becoming more genteel. In many places they are no longer filling the glasses. Remember—that an Imperial pint of draught entitles you to 20 fluid ounces and to get it the glass must come full to the brim. If it doesn't the only thing to do is to be brave and bung it back.

Hollywood.
THE most exciting thing in Hollywood right now is THE DRESSING-GOWN!
But not, of course, the shabby, shapeless dressing-gown that's usually found hanging behind the bathroom door.

No, the Hollywood dressing-gown for 1959 is expensive and very feminine. It looks so good that you could cheerfully go dancing in it!
Current craze for the dressing-gown was started by LANA TURNER, who wore some lovely creations in her recent film, "IMITATION OF LIFE."

By

Each of her dressing-gowns cost several hundred dollars, but she filled them so effectively that not one film magazine was heard to complain.

Among her choices of fabric—lustrous pink velvet trimmed with chinchilla collar and cuffs... expensive blue lace worn over blue silk.

Not everyone, even in Hollywood, can afford to wear pink velvet or blue silk on blue lace, but they can be original and they can spend a little more time, money and thought on a dressing-gown... which is exactly what they are doing.

LAYERS OF LACE

In fact, it's becoming quite the thing to welcome your friends in a dressing-gown, and if your friends start coming to you clad in their robes, de-chambre, who's to know the difference?

Think of all the fabrics, hitherto unconnected with the humble housecoat, that create the luxury look... frothy, billowing nylon, layers of lace, ruffles, sparkling crisp cottons, lacy with ribbon... and, for winter, bubbly looped boucle wool, long-haired mohair, imitation fur, deep pile brushed nylon.

Think of all the colours just made to brighten away those house-work hours... colours that gladden a husband's eye. Warm, glowing wine-red,...

Marriage By Capture

The bridal party originated back in the marriage-by-capture days. Loyal tribesmen and close friends of the bridegroom helped him invade enemy territory to capture his bride. While he escaped with her, his friends stayed behind to fight off her relatives. Hence, our ushers and best man, the maid-of-honour and bridesmaids can be traced directly to Saxon England. The oldest woman tended the bride before the wedding, making the bridal wreath, feast decorations and dressing the bride. Earlier, attendants protected the maiden from capture. And in Rome, they acted as witnesses to the marriage.

The maid-of-honour and bridesmaids can be traced Ring bearers and flower girls symbolised a fruitful union.

ONE of the highlights of a meal in a fine Chinese restaurant is the red plum sauce, served on a butter chip plate, along with hot mustard.

"My husband likes this plum sauce so much," TV's Nancy Ann Graham remarked to me, "that I make a batch every year and I use your recipe."

Chinese Red Plum Sauce (Use with Chicken, Pork, Seafood or Fish): Wash and pit 1 qt. sour red plums (do not peel).

Place in a 2 qt. saucepan with ½ c. raisins, ½ c. vinegar, 1 c. water, 1 ½ c. brown sugar, 1 tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. each ground clove and allspice, ½ tsp. ground cinnamon, ½ tsp. ground ginger, ½ tsp. paprika, ½ tsp. cayenne pepper.

Simmer-boil 30 min., or until the plums are very soft. Rub through a course strainer. Simmer until thick, like marmalade. Transfer to sterilised half-pt. glasses and seal.

"Perhaps our readers would also like to learn how to make the Chinese mustard, that is often served with red plum sauce," remarked the Chef.

"It is very easy. Just mix dry ground mustard with cold water until a smooth, medium-thick paste results."

DON'T BE IGNORANT ABOUT HOME DECORATING

Read this guide—and become a painting lady!

Gloria Gordon's COLUMN

WHENEVER there's a hint of warmer weather, out come the painting-brushes, and all the busy home decorators start rolling up their sleeves.

When the sun shines everyone feels full of renewed vigour, and it is only in the warm weather that paint can be given a fair chance of really drying evenly. Windows and doors can be left open, and currents of air can do the job thoroughly.

But why are so many wives ignorant about painting? And, especially, colour—scheming? After all, there's nothing so beautiful as a room in which the wife generally has far more time than her husband to study and read up clever tricks of the colour trade.

TRADE SECRETS

So here are some of the tricks of the trade. If you can memorise them, you'll be surprised at the expression on your husband's face as you reel them out... just as he is about to attack the right wall with the wrong colour!

1. Walls, ceilings and wood-work should harmonise, or pleasantly contrast with your furnishings.

2. Red, orange and yellow are colours which the eye draws nearer. So if you have a long, narrow room, paint the end walls in one of these colours—it will make the room more square.

3. Blue and green have the opposite effect—they are receding colours. So if you paint the side walls of your narrow room in one of these colours (or shades of), your room will look even squarer. In the same way, a low blue ceiling will look higher, and a small blue or green room will look larger and lighter.

WARM COLOURS

4. Red, orange and yellow are warm colours, and are very good for rooms which rarely catch the sun. A brief guide might include these colours for rooms facing North, green, blue grey for rooms facing South, ivory, cream, primrose for rooms facing East, and pale grey, green and blue for rooms facing West.

5. Some colours reflect light more than others. White, primrose, mist green and Wedgwood blue have a high percentage of light reflectance; pearl grey, golden brown, Chinese red and black, have a low light reflectance.

6. If you want to accentuate something, paint it in a light colour—it then looks larger. Darker painted objects look smaller by comparison.

7. Another useful point to remember is that a room's good features can be accentuated by painting them in a different colour from their surroundings. Those less attractive can be hidden by painting them in the same colour as their surroundings.

8. Lastly, experiment with artificial lighting. Colours change drastically according to the power and type of illumination, and you're due for a nasty shock if you don't experiment first!

Attic Treasure Hunt

—Christopher Takes His Friends on a Merry Chase—

By MAX TRELL

"Now, how," said Christopher Cricket to Knarf and Hanid, the Shadows with the Turned About Names, "would you like to go exploring with me?"

"Exploring?" said Knarf. "You mean for buried treasure?"

Christopher Cricket nodded his head gravely.

"Where is it?" asked Knarf. "I mean where is the buried treasure?"

"Right here in this house," said Christopher Cricket.

Knarf and Hanid both looked surprised.

"But, Christopher, you can't really mean there is buried treasure in this house," said Hanid.

The Leader

"That's just what I do mean," said Christopher. "If you come with me, I'll show you. The Cat told me about it. So did the Dog. So did a Mouse. And a Spider, who lives down in the cellar, told me just where to find that buried treasure. It's behind a barrel, behind a box, behind a pile of old shoes, and a pile of dusty books, behind a chair with three legs."

"Oh, it sounds wonderful!" cried Hanid. "Come on, Christopher. Let's all go and hunt for that buried treasure."

"Fine," said Christopher. "Let's go."

Up The Steps

"Just a minute," said Knarf, as they all started out of the room. "Don't we need something to dig with? Don't we need a light?"

"Come along, come along," said Christopher. "We don't need anything."

Instead of walking down the cellar steps, Christopher Cricket led Knarf and Hanid up the steps to the attic.

"The buried treasure is up there," he said.

When they reached the attic, they found it almost dark, for it was already late in the afternoon and the sun was sinking. The little light that came in through the dusty attic windows melted away among the piles of old things stored there.

It took a minute or two before Knarf and Hanid could get their eyes accustomed to the dim light.

"Look!" cried Knarf all at once as he pointed to an object standing in the shadows. "There's the three-legged chair."

Attic Search

"Good!" said Christopher. "Now let's find the pile of books that is behind the chair, somewhere."

It took them a little while to find the pile of books, and a little while longer to find the pair of old shoes.

By this time the three searchers after buried treasure were in the deepest and darkest part of the attic. They were speaking in whispers now.

"Knarf! Christ Here's the box," said Hanid.

"The barrel should be right behind here somewhere," said Christopher. "Then we'll find the treasure."

They grouped around. The next minute they stumbled into the barrel. It was old and broken. It was filled with pots and pans that had once belonged to Grandmother.

"And now," said Christopher in a very mysterious voice, "the buried treasure should be right behind the barrel."

The three friends saw it at the same time! They all made a grab for it at once. It was a tiny box. And when they took the box to the light and opened it, out sprang a little man—a Jack-in-the-Box—a tiny, crumpled clown.

"I'm glad you found me," he said. "I was thrown here years and years ago. I was just beginning to get tired of staying in this old attic all by myself."

"And that was the" buried treasure that Knarf and Hanid and Christopher found!

How often have you seen a mother, when her small child stumbles, haul the luckless infant to its feet by an uncerebrated wrench of its arm? Many times, no doubt.

Yet very few parents realise that this is the way to cause a "pulled elbow." It is a remarkably common complaint and one easy to diagnose.

This is the sequence of events. Following a sharp jerk on the arm, the child decides not to use the affected limb. He sits with it on his lap, with the elbow slightly flexed or he holds the wrist in the other hand. With a little motherly persuasion he can probably be induced to move the arm in every direction but one.

EASY

He slowly refuses to let you put it in such a position that the palm of the hand is face downwards.

There has been a lot of discussion about what exactly goes wrong in these circumstances. If we say that it is the head of the radius (one of the two bones in the forearm) which has wandered out of place it is all we need know. The remedy is easy.

It is best to let the doctor put the wayward head back into place for the first time; no anaesthetic is necessary and if you watch the doctor's movements you can quite safely and quickly learn what to do if the same mishap should occur again.

There is a satisfying "click" as the head of the bone pops back into position and young Jimmie will tell you at once that "the arm feels better, now."

Sometimes there is a little pain. If there is, the arm should be kept in a sling for a day or two.

Obviously the most important thing in treatment is prevention. Never jerk a child up by the arm. Remember that this is a very common mishap. Indeed, it has recently been said that the "pulled elbow" is now the commonest single injury to the arm in all children under eight.

Two other names for this accident help one to realise both the cause and the cure—"curbstone fracture" (although there is no actual fracture) and "lantrum elbow."

The tantrum really ought to be related not to the child but to the parent!

Golf Guide

If your wife claims she's a golf-widow, tell her what Dr. Anthony R. Tortora, of New York, has to say about the sport. "Golf affords fresh air and sunshine, general body exercise, stimulation of the mind by the mere process of watching a little white ball and the satisfaction of personal gain and achievement by the challenge it presents," he said.

As a man plays on the course, he resists, his tensions find an outlet and decrease, Dr. Tortora said, and he becomes more congenial.

Golf is good for an individual who handles his aggressive drives poorly or has no suitable outlet to vent these drives, the doctor added. Muscular activity gives such a person a chance to release and spend these aggressions.

"The degree of exercise offered by golf plays a role in preventive medicine," Tortora added. "Lack of muscular activity may result in weak muscles and the equivalent of nervous tension."

"This, in turn, may be responsible for neck and shoulder pain, backache and headaches, as well as other disturbances referred to psychosomatic."

Christopher Cricket pointed to the barrel.

WORLD STUDENT GAMES OPEN TODAY

More Than 40 Nations
In An Olympic Try-out
On A Modified Scale

By VERNON MORGAN

Turin, Aug. 26.

More than 1,000 men and women athletes from all parts of the world are taking part in the World Student Games which begin here early tomorrow. Competitors from more than 40 nations, including Eastern and Western Europe, North and South America, Asia and the Far East are taking part in the Universiad, as it has been named by the organisers.

George Tribe Achieves First 'Double' Of The Cricket Season

London, Aug. 26.

George Tribe, Northamptonshire's 38-year-old Australian all-rounder, became the first man this season to achieve the double of 100 wickets and 1,000 runs when he reached 52 against Middlesex at Lord's.

It was the seventh time he had completed the double in the last eight years.

It was appropriate that he should reach his target at Lord's for it was his last appearance at the cricket headquarters. He is returning to Australia in October.

Northant Revival

Tribe, 56 not out, played a major part in a Northamptonshire revival after Alan Moss, Middlesex pace bowler, had taken four wickets for three runs in 20 balls.

Twenty-two wickets fell today in the match between Gloucestershire, the championship leaders, and Surrey, in the running for their eighth successive title.

David Allen, Gloucestershire off-spin bowler who has been chosen for the tour of the West Indies, took five wickets for 43 runs as Surrey crashed to 139 all out. But Surrey's famed "spin twins," Tony Lock and Jim Laker, retained so strongly that Gloucestershire were out for 101. Lock took five for 37 and Laker five for 58.

These two counties have probably the best spin attacks in the country, and they found the pitch ideally suited to them.

Surrey appeared to have done well to take a first innings lead of 29, but Sam Cook sent back Brian Burgess and Dave Glibson with the first two balls when they batted again.

Dominated

Yorkshire, still in the running, dominated the day's play against Worcestershire. After dismissing their rivals for 120, they took the lead and bonus points with only one man out and finished 77 ahead with seven wickets left. Brian Stott scored 110 not out in three hours 25 minutes with the aid of 16 fours.

Brian Statham, the Lancashire and England pace bowler, was in top form against Kent, taking five wickets for 31 in 13 fiery overs. Kent were out for 83 in 125 minutes. Cyril Washbrook, playing his last game at Old Trafford as captain, joined Brian Booth in a fourth wicket stand of 86 after Lancashire had lost three wickets for 41 runs. Washbrook completed a masterly half-century and later Statham followed up his fine bowling by making 44 and helping Lancashire take a lead of 120.

Scores

Close of play scores in today's cricket matches were:
At Lord's: Northamptonshire 306 (M. Norman 80, Subba Row 62, G. T. Tribe 56, not out), Versus Middlesex.

At Manchester: Kent 83 (B. Statham five for 31), Lancashire 203 (C. Washbrook 50, R. Booth 40).

At Worcester: Worcestershire 120, Yorkshire 197 for three (W. Stott 110 not out, D. Padgett 48).

At Gloucester: Surrey 139 (J. Edrich 45, D. Allen five for 43), and secondly ten for two wickets. Gloucestershire 101 (G. Lock five for 32, J. Laker five for 53).

At Derby: Derbyshire 270 (I. Hall 69, H. Johnson 72, J. Cotton five for 55), Nottinghamshire 37 for one. —Reuter.

count of nine and again for a count of eight. De Klerk could no longer defend himself, though he was standing when the fight was stopped.

RUSTY

Cooper, who hadn't fought since January and defends his British title against former British champion Joe Erskine in November, was a little rusty but superior to De Klerk in every way. The contender, however, showed courage and a good right hand.

In a curtain raiser, Erskine won a ten-round decision from southpaw Bruno Scatellato, Italian heavyweight king. Yugoslav Johansson, Sweden's world heavyweight champion, was present at the ring-side. —AP.

Jimmy Greaves Leads Chelsea To 1-0 Win Over Manchester United

London, Aug. 26.

Jimmy Greaves, the young Chelsea inside-right who scored a hat-trick on Saturday, was on the target again tonight to score his club's goal in their 1-0 win over Manchester United in the English soccer league.

Manchester United have made a surprisingly bad start to the season and have lost their first two games. To add to their troubles, centre-forward Alex Dawson was carried off the field, injured after a collision with Chelsea's international goalkeeper Reg Matthews.

Unhappy Notts

Another side having an unhappy time was the Cup holders, Nottingham Forest. They also have lost both opening games, going down 3-0 to Arsenal at Nottingham tonight. Arsenal right-winger Danny Clapton scored all three goals—the first hat-trick of his career.

League champions, Wolverhampton Wanderers, beat newly-promoted Sheffield Wednesday 3-1 at Wolverhampton. Wolves' goalkeeper, Malcolm Finlayson, scarcely touched the ball.

The other promoted club, Fulham, who disappointed on Saturday, showed themselves a worthy first division side with a 5-2 win over Manchester City. England international Johnny Hayes scored twice and "made" a third goal.

In the Scottish League Cup, Motherwell kept their 100 per cent record with a 2-1 win over Rangers.

Bygraves Loses To Roy Harris On Points

Houston, Aug. 26.
Roy Harris (Texas) ranked sixth among the world heavyweight boxers gained a unanimous ten-round points decision over Jamaican Joe Bygraves former British Empire champion here last night.

Some of the 8,000 crowd booed the fighters because of lack of action. Few solid blows were landed in the fight which was monopolized by a great deal of in-fighting.

Harris landed the best punch, a left hook to the head, which caused Bygraves to slip to one knee in the fourth round, but Bygraves was up immediately. —Reuter.

JOHANSSON TO VISIT U.S. NEXT MONTH

New York, Aug. 26.
Ingemar Johansson, world heavyweight champion, cabled the New York State Athletic Commission today that he would be in New York at the end of next month to discuss details of his return fight with Floyd Patterson.

Johansson signed a contract for the return bout at Gohlborg, Sweden, yesterday. The bout will be held early next year with the exact date and site to be set later.

The champion, who took the title from Patterson at New York's Yankee Stadium on June 20, revealed the plans of his trip in a cable thanking the commission for information it gave regarding the receipts of the first fight. —Reuter.

Detroit Gain 3-2 Win Over Washington In American League

Detroit, Aug. 26.

Jim Bunning, the American League's top strikeout artist, fanned 11 Washington batters today but needed relief help from three pitchers to give the Detroit Tigers a 3-2 victory over the Senators.

Bunning was working on a one-hitter until the eighth inning when he wilted in the 90-degree temperature and allowed the Senators to score twice.

But Pete Burnside came in to retire pinch-hitter Reno Bortola and get the side out.

Dave came on in the 9th and he also needed help from Tom Morgan after giving up an infield hit to Hal Naragon and a walk in with two out.

Quick Lead

Eddie Yost gave the Tigers a quick 1-0 lead by tagging starter Russ Kemmerer's first pitch into the stands for his 16th homer of the season.

WHAT A FARCE THIS AMERICAN DAVIS CUP TEAM IS

Says JOHN COTTRELL

Here we go again on that monotonous merry-go-round of lawn tennis—the Davis Cup Challenge Round. It opens tomorrow at Forest Hills, New York, and as usual Australia and the United States are continuing to monopolise the three-day battle for world supremacy in amateur tennis. It's been that way for 21 years. In a tournament that spans the earth these two nations have come out on top for their sixteenth successive meeting in the final, with the score standing at 8-7 in Australia's favour.

But this year there is a slight variation: The United States are expected to start hot favourites for the first time in ten years.

That great decade of Australian lawn tennis has seen the coming and going of three successful Cup combinations—Segman and McGregor, Lind and Rosewall, Cooper and Anderson. Each, in turn, has been hooked into the professional ranks by Jack Kramer's cheque book.

Fighting Chance

No country could lose no many star players and be expected to recapture the world cup of tennis at the first attempt. Yet Australia has such a wealth of young talent, such a great team-builder in Harry "The Fox" Hopman, that I believe they now enter the Challenge Cup with a fighting chance of victory.

The form book points to an American home win for the first time since Schroeder and Gonzales beat the Australians in New York in 1940.

But it's not just form that counts in this nerve-racking five-match world-title fight. It takes plenty of guts and determination as well. And that's where I reckon the Australians score best.

Hopman's "Four Musketeers"—Fraser, Emerson, Laver and Mack—have performed wonders during the last four months. They have played through the Italian and French championships; in Germany; at Queen's Club, London; through the Wimbledon fortnight; in Mexico City, 14 miles above sea level; against Canada, Cuba, and most recently in the U.S. national doubles championships.

The Americans never had such a fantastic journey to the Davis Cup final—and this tough passage has been made tougher by a large number of marathon matches.

Memorable

The most memorable ones were at Wimbledon where 20-year-old Red "Red" Laver took 87 games to beat Barry Mackay in the Championship; Laver's ever semi-final, and where Neale Fraser went out to Mackay in a 71-game quarter-final.

Now we have the exciting possibility of return meetings in the Davis Cup. For the line-up is Fraser, Emerson, Laver and Mack for Australia; Olmedo, Mackay, Barten and Buchholz for the United States.

On paper, the Americans look certain winners, since Alex Olmedo, who won the Davis Cup almost single-handed last January, has beaten both Fraser and Laver in their previous meetings.

But it is this great reliance on the supreme skill of Olmedo which could prove the Americans' downfall.

Olmedo, 22-year-old champion of Wimbledon and Australia, is undoubtedly in a class of his own in the amateur ranks. But he is temperamental and has recently become a "tatter" that he has been officially rapped on the knuckles for apparently losing a tournament match on purpose.

In fact, he has won only one tournament since Wimbledon—the Eastern Grass Courts singles title in New Jersey. In the final, he dropped a set to young Mike Green, a player with an attractive style but no great record.

Not So Fanatical

Moreover, Olmedo is a Peruvian in everything but tennis. He may owe his tennis and scholastic education to the United States but I cannot believe he feels so fanatical about winning the Davis Cup as, say, Australians playing for Australia.

One thing may spur him to maximum effort: The fact that a second performance in the Davis Cup could help him in his sticky negotiations with Jack Kramer.

And frankly I say, the sooner Olmedo turns professional the better. He seems out-of-water in the amateur game and his inclusion in the American Davis Cup team is making a farce of the whole competition. I liked the comment of Australia's Sydney Sun when Olmedo, advised by Pancho

Gonzales, won the Davis Cup last December. They said: "Australia lost the Davis Cup to Peru with Mexico advising the winners from the sidelines."

This time it could be a case of Peru winning with advice from Mexico and Ecuador. For Pancho Segura has been giving Olmedo a great deal of free coaching this season.

Deplorable

With their vast manpower resources it seems deplorable that the United States should need to exploit a legal technicality—qualification by three years' residence—to play a foreigner in their national team.

If they dropped Olmedo—and I say he deserves to be dropped for his prima donna antics—this week's Challenge Round could be a three-day thriller and the result would really mean something.

But be sure that the Machiavellian masters of American tennis will prefer to win with a Peruvian than go down fighting with an all-American "American" team.

I expect they will also play Olmedo in the doubles, possibly partnered by dynamic Earl "Burrhead" Buchholz, the 18-year-old High School boy who last year achieved the unique feat of winning the Junior titles of Australia, France, Wimbledon and the United States. It will be excellent experience for Buchholz, a player with a great future.

If their partnership fails, the Americans will need at least one singles victory by Barry Mackay to clinch the rubber. And here the issue may lie in the balance.

Determined Fighter

Giant Mackay—6ft 3in and 14 st—is a determined fighter who must have worked harder at tennis than any other National Serviceman in history. He is an Airman Third Class (they don't come any lower) in the U.S.A.F.

But, despite his so-called look on the tennis court, he tells me he suffers a lot from nerves. Moreover, he was not really impressive in beating Fraser, Australia's No. 1 at Wimbledon, and the match might easily have gone the other way.

However, the same applies to his defeat by the left-handed Laver. In fact, if they meet again, I will not be surprised if Fraser beats Mackay and Mackay beats Laver. I do not believe Mackay will conquer them both for he tends to be upset, tactically, by left-handers.

Unluckiest Player

That, I believe, explains the inclusion of the little-known Bernard Barten in the American team. He is a southpaw and has been brought in to give the star players valuable practice.

The man I would like to see succeed most in the Challenge Round is Neale Andrew Fraser, Australia's No. 1. He is far from being the greatest amateur

Davis Cup Challenge Round Draw

MAY UP AND OUT BUT NO CRICKET

Peter May, England and Surrey captain, is out of hospital. He has made a satisfactory recovery from his operation, but there is no possibility of his playing again this season.

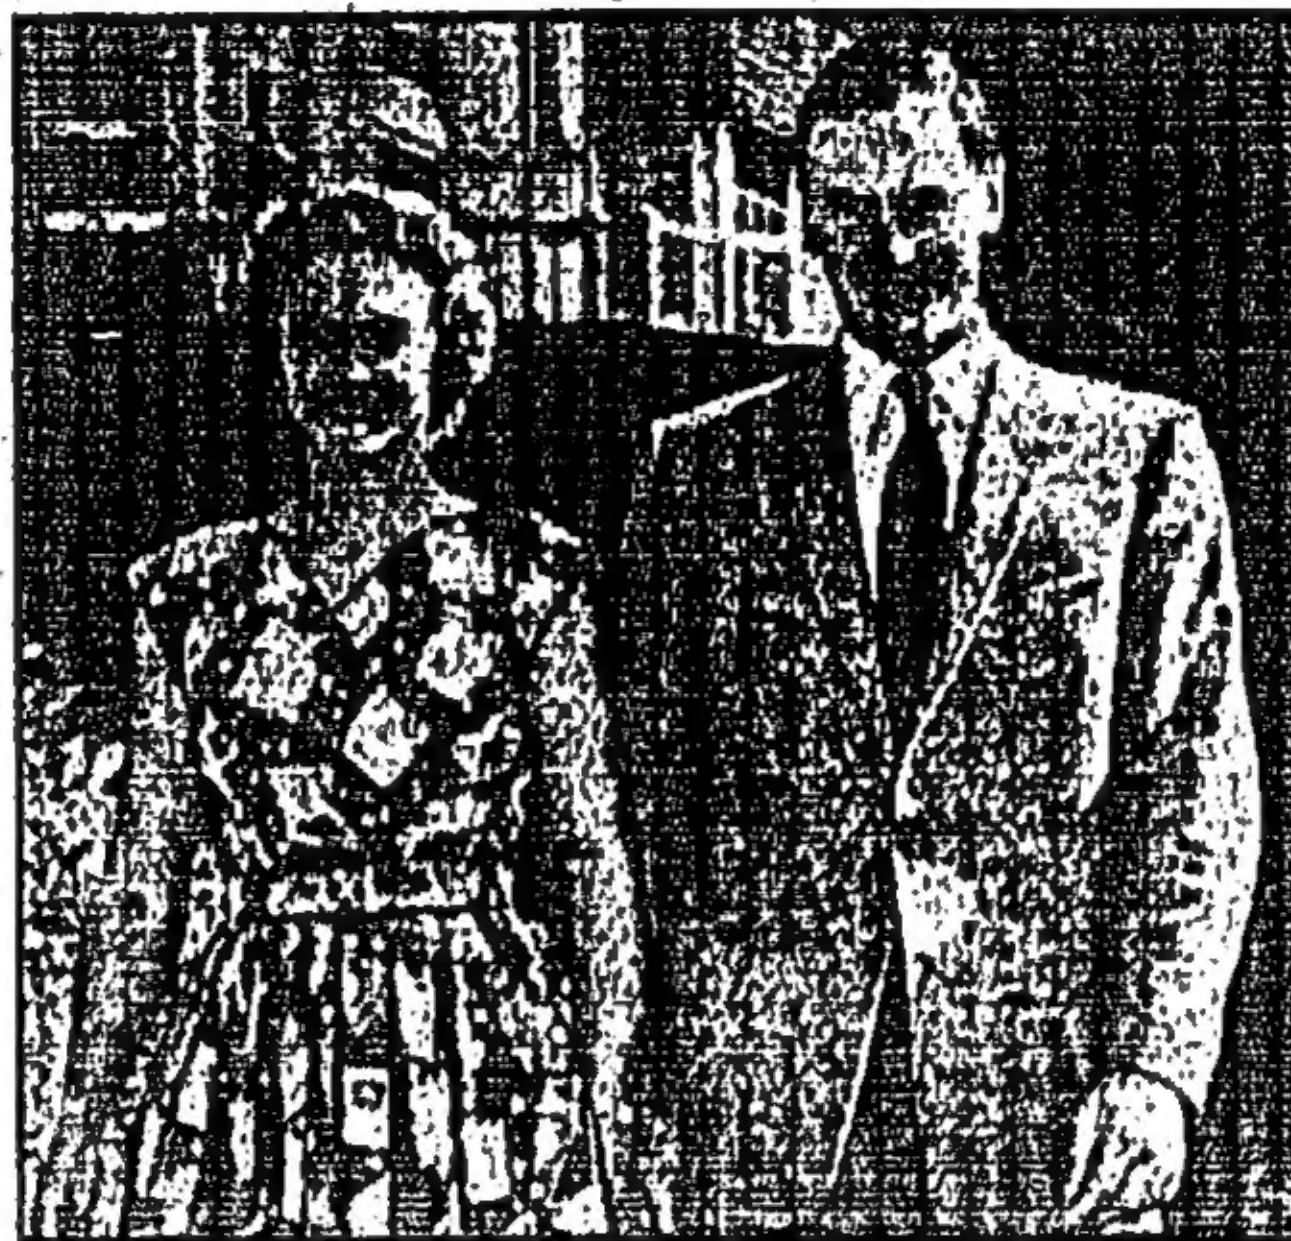

His chances of going with Surrey to Rhodesia for two matches in October are also remote.

Surrey play Rhodesia at Bulawayo and Salisbury—four days each—and 12 players will travel under the management of ex-skipper Stuart Burridge.

May is, however, expected to be fully fit by the time the MCC party leave for their West Indies tour this winter. He has been named as Captain of the team.

player—his backhand is weak and he relies too much on his big serve—but he is certainly the unluckiest.

He has been runner-up in the singles championships of Wimbledon, Australia, and Italy, but he has never played in a Challenge Round singles match. First he was eclipsed by Hoad and Rosewall; then by Cooper and Anderson. Now he is in danger of being overtaken by fast-improving Laver and Emerson.

But, before he gives way to the new young stars, I hope good-natured Fraser plays a part in regaining the Davis Cup for Australia.

For this is one time when I abandon my neutrality. I'm a hundred per cent behind the Australians because they are one hundred per cent Australian.

I hope they thrash the pants off this Yankee-Peruvian combination which is called the American Davis Cup Team.

OLMEDO TO PLAY FRASER IN OPENING SINGLES MATCH TOMORROW

New York, Aug. 26.

Alex Olmedo today was drawn against Neale Fraser of Australia for the opening singles match of the Davis Cup tennis challenge round on Friday at Forest Hills, New York. The draw pitted Barry Mackay of Dayton, Ohio against Rod Laver in Friday's other match.

The players will reverse opponents in Sunday's final two singles contests. In these matches, Olmedo will meet Laver in the first match and Mackay will play Fraser in the final match of the best-of-five series.

The doubles match will be played on Saturday. Captains Perry Jones of the United States and Harry Hopman of Australia are not required to name their doubles teams until an hour before the match is scheduled to begin.

The draw was made from the Davis Cup itself with Donald Ferguson, President of the Australian Lawn Tennis Association, drawing the American names and Victor Denny, President of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association, the Australian names.

To reach the challenge round against the United States, the Australians met and defeated Mexico, Canada, Cuba, Italy and India.

The official Davis Cup reference will be H. Levan Richards of New York.

Hopman predicted Australia would regain the cup by a 3-2 margin, but the U.S. captain, Perry Jones, went all out and forecast a 5-0 clean sweep for the U.S.

Olmedo has proved he is the finest player in the world when the chips are down," Jones said, "and Mackay, who beat Fraser at Wimbledon, is 25 per cent improved over last year. Furthermore, I think we can win the doubles."

Hopman said, "We must give Olmedo a slight edge over our two singles players, but I believe we have a bigger edge over Mackay and can win the doubles."

Both captains insisted the draw made no difference at all. "All of these players have shown they can withstand pressure and can play at any time," Jones said.

However, most experts felt that the draw gave Australia whatever edge there might be. It was reasoned that Olmedo would have to be heavily favoured over Laver and therefore an Olmedo-Laver first match would have sent the U.S. off to a sure lead, and thus put the pressure on Australia.

Fraser Pleased

Fraser said he was pleased with the draw.

"I'm glad to play first," he said, "you get it started and ease the tension. I think we could win the first three matches and settle it quickly."

The Friday matches start at 1800 GMT (2 a.m. Saturday Hongkong time); the Saturday doubles at 1830 GMT and the Sunday singles at 1815 GMT.

Both teams left the Hotel Commodore, site of the draw, for the West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills and a practice session on the centre courts.

Hopman said that he was willing to announce that Fraser and Roy Emerson would be his doubles team—"But I reserve the right to make a change at the last minute." He said he was making the early announcement—which had been a foregone conclusion since Fraser-Emerson are the Wimbledon and U.S. doubles champions—to help in the ticket sales. Jones said he still would not name his team until Saturday—UPI.

HANTS PILE UP BIG SCORE AGAINST INDIANS

Bournemouth, Aug. 26.

Mike Barnard hit his first century of the season to lead Hampshire to the formidable score of 360 for nine on the opening day of their match against the Indian cricketers here today.

Going in when three wickets had fallen for 14, Barnard tamed the Indians' spin attack of Raghunath Nadkarni and Chandrakant Borge with a solid 128, which equalled the previous best score of his career. He batted for four hours and hit 10 fours.

Day's Highlight

A solid fourth-wicket stand of 78 between Barnard and Henry Horton (40) pulled Hampshire back from the precarious 74 for three.

The day's highlight, however, was the sixth-wicket stand, in which Barnard and Peter Salisbury (53) hit up 132.

With the removal of Barnard and Salisbury, the tailenders hit lustily to give the total a late boost.

In the morning, West Indian Roy Marshall and Jimmy Gray punished the tourists' opening attack of Desai and Surendra Nath for 54 in 45 minutes. Marshall scored his 37 at a run a minute and included eight boundaries.

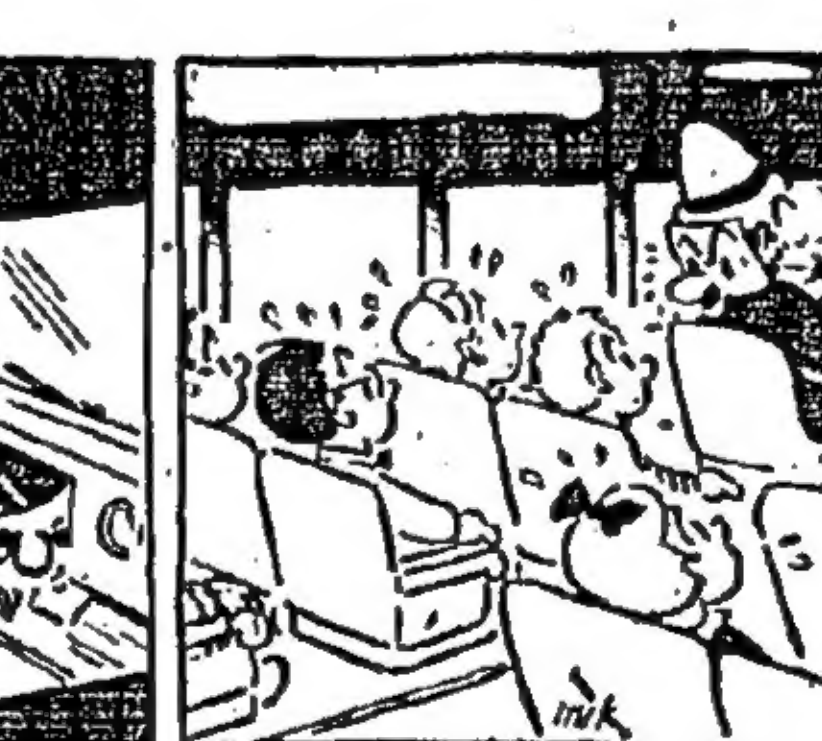

The economical Nadkarni was the Indians' best bowler with four for 89 from 48 overs.

The tourists missed the services of pace bowler Desai after the early stages. He broke down just before lunch with a recurrence of an ankle injury and left the field.—Reuter.

Socialist Party Reveals Plan For Nationalisation

Tokyo, Aug. 23
(By Airmail).

JAPAN'S Olympic Games Committee has tentatively set July 25, 1964, for the opening of the Olympiad in Tokyo—a period of the year when the heat and humidity are almost insupportable.

A large number of foreign correspondents have threatened to start protest campaigns through the various media available, to have the date changed—with the majority advocating late September or early October as being most suitable. The Japanese want the Games held during the school vacation period and also say that most of the events will be held in the evening.

However, July and August nights here are painfully sticky, and the athletes will still have to train during the days. Some 30,000 foreign visitors are anticipated for the Games, but most of them would avoid coming if they knew what a wretched set of conditions awaited them. One columnist has facetiously suggested a full 20,000 hospital beds be available for sunstroke and heat prostration cases.

Obviously pressure must be brought to bear on the organisers to force them to change the date. Japan is a very pleasant place in autumn, and the weather which usually prevails then would suit athletes and spectators alike.

Every so often, one of the innumerable committees, councils or boards which has associated itself with the "tourist industry" here, comes out with grandiose statements about "improvements" which will be made, and makes great predictions of the hundreds of millions of tourist dollars which will roll into the country's coffers as a result. There was another one last week, but this time it wasn't allowed to pass without strong comment.

The position at the moment is that foreign air and sea carriers have spent enormous sums publicising Japan and providing the very best means for bringing visitors here. However—except for the talk—Japan has made no attempt to match these efforts, and has certainly done nothing about improving conditions of travel within this country. Worse still, the traffic on foreign carriers' planes or ships is generated from without this country as there is no such thing as a Japanese "tourist". In other words there is no reciprocity whatsoever.

Despite the fact that Japan's foreign exchange holdings are the highest ever and the country is prospering to a remarkable extent, the Japanese people cannot travel abroad just for the pleasure of it. A favoured few can get passports, but others must be "sponsored" by a foreign source.

The Socialist Party has revealed plans for a lengthy nationalisation programme should it come into power. Seichi Katsumata, chairman of the Party's Policy Council, said the first three or four years would be devoted to strengthening the "economic foundation" and advancing foreign policy along the lines of neutralism. This latter would mean immediate repudiation of any military alliance with the United States.

The second stage would be a five-year period during which nationalisation of major industries would be undertaken, and possibly along with this, a re-deployment of the population to aid development. The third period would see the completion of the entire scheme.

At present, the Socialist Party is still divided within itself on policy, lacks foresight and appealing leadership, and still suffers a hangover from wartime days when the Kensei and "Thought Control Police" impressed upon the public that a "Socialist" was a "Communist" or worse. The stigma still remains to a surprising extent.

IN order that little children should realize that there must be a purpose in the games they play with toys, and should get the full sense of Educational Values out of what used to be called fun, the psychiatrists have been at work.

A toy is "a play therapy aid," and games on the floor an important branch of anti-frustration therapeutics. Everybody must have noticed how a disintegration of excellent factors, in a child playing with a toy horse, is balanced by a progressive extrusion of differentiated perceptions and leads to undeveloped cognition in the qualitative mode. (See Hush-pot's "Basic Behaviourism and the Child Mind.")

"Give him a bomber"

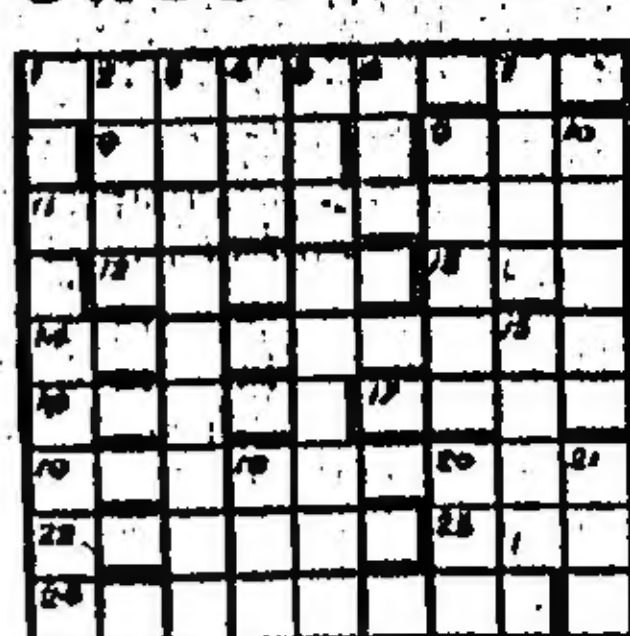

The ghastly accusation that attitudes at our embassies abroad are not very good armament, proves, if proof were needed, could not armament firms run an advertising campaign abroad with slogans flashed on film-screens in between pictures. "Thinking Are Better." "Thinking of a Revolution?" Consult Thompson & Filer Ltd. "Say it with Stena."

A valuable conclusion

IN Whittierford's "Mental Reactions" and the "Lovers' Consciousness" an experiment with cephalopods from Tierra del Fuego showed that a bee tickled with a fragment of cold blotting paper utters a warning note, in the same way, a child distressed at play often exhibits a warning note. This is known as Piff's Law of Primary Reactions, which he elaborated in his "Beitrage zur Theorie der Schulpens im Psychophysiologischen und Autogenetischen Schulpensystem." Doctor's Plea To Use Car: Disqualification Partly Lifted

A doctor who had his licence confiscated for six months after being convicted on a dangerous driving charge had his period of disqualification reduced to three months in the Appeals Court today.

He is Morrison Mok, who had been fined $100, besides the suspension. Mok told Mr Justice A. D. Scholes that he was not a registered doctor, but in 1953 he had received permission from the Director of Medical Services to practise in free clinics. He said he needed his car to go to Taiipo every day to the free clinic there.

So Few

"There are so few medical practitioners serving the New Territories," he said. He said his appointment as a doctor at the Taiipo free clinic was made by a charitable organisation.

His hours were 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. He could not go by early train because he had to attend a free clinic in Hongkong during the morning.

The judge reduced the disqualification period to three months and ordered the endorsement be amended accordingly.

In court today Mr Justice Scholes dismissed 11 other appeals against sentences for possession of heroin, soliciting for immoral purposes, and assault.

70-Year-Old Tenements To Be Replaced

Two seventy-year-old tenement houses, 402 and 404, Queen's Road West, were the subject of an application for exemption this morning.

The applicant, Mr Pun Shul-yun, lives in 404 and wishes to demolish both two-story houses.

He proposes building a reinforced concrete six-story building on the site, to cost $75,000. It would have a floor area of almost double the existing premises, and would be finished in seven months.

The new building would have shops on the ground and one flat on each of the five upper floors.

Appearing for the applicant was Mr W. I. Cheung of Messrs P. H. Sin & Co., and for nine of the sixteen opponents, Mr J. M. d'Almeida Remedios. The remaining opponents conducted their own claims personally.

All the claims for compensation which totalled $16,250, were agreed between applicant and opponents, and the tribunal recommended exemption.

The tribunal consisted of Mr J. E. Dargatzis (president), Mr Chow Yat-keung and Mr A. M. Dixon.
